Clean water. Fresh air. Wild places. Defending our right to a safe environment against attacks by polluters depends on unbiased, fair-minded federal judges.

But President Bush is nominating extremists who would use the courts to promote their radical agendas. Nominee William Pryor has repeatedly sided with corporate polluters over environmental safeguards. As Alabama's Attorney General, he testified before Congress that the EPA violated states' rights by enforcing clean air laws to reduce acid rain. William Pryor even tried to convince the Supreme Court that vital protections for clean water and endangered species were unconstitutional.

Federal judges are appointed for a lifetime, and our Senators have a duty to ensure that nominees will not put extreme agendas ahead of our rights. Call Senators XXX and XXX today at 202-224-3121. Ask them to protect our air and water by opposing William Pryor's nomination.
